Summary of programme aims

This is a multi-disciplinary programme which aims to provide students with subject-specific knowledge, including knowledge of a variety of different kinds of literary, cultural and historical texts from a range of periods, together with perspectives on different methods of critical analysis, a sound grasp of written and spoken French, and an understanding of selected aspects of francophone literature, history, culture and politics. More generally, the course also aims to foster an independent approach to formulating problems and arguments, using the close reading and analytical skills that are fundamental to both disciplines.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills in line with the University's Strategy for Learning and Teaching. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving, and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

Programme content

Each Part of the degree programme comprises 120 credits. In Part 1 students are required to take 60 credits in English, where they are introduced to fundamental debates about the study of literature through close analysis of selected texts from different periods. They must also take a minimum of 40 credits in French, involving both language study and an introduction to aspects of contemporary French culture. In Parts 2 and 3 students must normally take 80 credits in English and 40 credits in French each year. The English strand of the programme provides increased breadth of coverage, focusing on a variety of historical periods and generic traditions, while in the French strand students continue their language studies and choose options from a selection of broadly-based modules in French history and politics or French and Francophone literature and culture.

Students must choose one option module to the value of 20 credits. A list of current options can be found in the relevant Departmental Handbook.

Progression requirements

To proceed from Part 1 to Part 2, a Combined Honours student must obtain: 1. an overall average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 1, where all the credits are at C level or above; 2. a minimum of 40% in each of the compulsory modules in French; 3. a mark of at least 40% in each English module; 4. a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 1.

To proceed from Part 2 to Part 3, students must obtain: 1. an overall average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 2; 2. an average of 40% across English Part 2 modules; 3. a mark of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to not less than 100 credits taken in Part 2.

Summary of teaching and assessment

Over the programme as a whole, teaching is through a combination of lectures, seminar discussion and essay tutorials. French language modules are taught in small groups, and include use of language laboratory resources. The Dissertation module is supported by workshops and individual supervision. Assessment is conducted through a mixture of assessed essays and formal examination.

Conventions for degree classification are included in the Programme Handbook, but you should note that weighting between Part 2 and Part 3 for classification purposes is 33% and 67%.

Admission requirements

Entrants to this combined degree programme are normally required to have obtained:

UCAS Tariff: either 280 points from three A2s, including 100 points (grade B) in English Literature or English Language and Literature or 320 points from 3 A2s + up to two AS, including 100 points (grade B) in English Literature or English Language and Literature. In French, candidates must normally have either 100 points (Grade B) from GCE 'A' level French to take FR101 (Advanced French Language) in Part 1, or 50 points at 'A/S' French or an A* at GCSE French to take FR102 (Intermediate French Language) in Part 1.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers, and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@il) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Student Services Centre. The Student Services Centre is housed in the Carrington Building and includes the Careers Advisory Service, the Disability Advisory Service, Accommodation Advisory Team, Student Financial Support, Counselling and Study Advisors. Student Services has a Helpdesk available for enquiries made in person or online, or by calling the central enquiry number on (0118) 378 5555. Students can get key information and guidance from the team of Helpdesk Advisers, or make an appointment with a specialist adviser; Student Services also offer drop-in sessions on everything from accommodation to finance. The Carrington Building is open between 8:30 and 17:30 Monday to Thursday (17:00 Friday and during vacation periods). Further information can be found in the Student Diary (given to students at enrolment) or on the Student website.

The Department of English and American Literature also offers students specific help to improve and develop their essay writing skills through the Royal Literary Fund Fellowship scheme, which provides a resident professional writer whose role is to advise students individually, from first-year to postgraduate level, on raising the level of their academic writing.

Students receive Handbooks from both Schools which give details of the programme, guidance on study skills such as note-taking and essay writing, and information about staff, facilities, and sources of specialized help within the University, such as the Study Skills Advisor and the Counselling Service. Both components of the programme are designed to support students throughout their degree course while encouraging more independent work in Part 3. Academic feedback and guidance is given through one-to-one essay tutorials, and academic and personal support is provided through the tutor system and the University's Personal and Academic Record (PAR) scheme. Dissertation workshops prepare students for the Part 3 dissertation which is individually supervised. The Geoffrey Matthews Collection, housed in the Department of English and American Literature, has a collection of books, xeroxed materials, cassettes and videos for loan to students, and a video-viewing suite is available within the Faculty. The Library's electronic databases include the OED, the MLA Bibliography, and the DNB on CD ROM, and such on-line resources as JSTOR and First Search. Specialist subject librarians are available to give students advice and guidance to library resources.

Career prospects

In recent years students who have gained combined degrees in English with sFrench have gone into a wide variety of jobs, including teaching, publishing, journalism, the media, administration, and public relations. A degree involving a second language may also be useful for careers in management or marketing, and an increasing number of students find positions in the business world, including the travel industry. More generally, the degree provides graduates with a range of communication and analytical skills that will serve them in good stead in the marketplace. Graduates may also go on to further academic study and research. In addition to the help provided by the University Careers Advisory Service, the Department of English and American Literature has a Careers Tutor available to advise students in English on researching and planning their career choices.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Programme Outcomes

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

1. Literary texts in English from selected periods between the Middle Ages and the present day
2. A range of kinds of texts including fiction, poetry and drama
3. Methods of critical textual analysis
4. Ways in which social, cultural and historical issues relate to texts
5. A range of approaches in English studies
6. Selected special fields of English
7. The French language
8. French and francophone history, politics and/or literature and culture
9. Key approaches and methods of historical, political and/or literary and cultural analysis

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

In English, knowledge and understanding are gained through formal teaching (lectures, seminar discussions, individual essay feedback), prescribed and recommended reading, and the writing of essays and a dissertation. Part 1 offers a broad introduction to 1-5. In Part 2 the understanding and skills acquired in Part 1 are developed with particular emphasis on 1, 2 and 4 through seminars, lectures and individual feedback. Part 3 introduces more specialized study, particularly in relation to 3, 5 and 6, through a choice of seminar-based modules together with supervised, independent study leading to a dissertation.

In French, the skills of reading, writing, listening to and speaking French (7) are developed through small-group work and regular non-assessed coursework. The acquisition of French grammar is aided by Powerpoint lectures in Part 2, supplemented by self-access, internet materials. 8 and 9 are introduced in lectures and seminars, and are developed through individual reading and research from library and internet resources.

Assessment

In English Parts 1 and 2, knowledge and understanding of 1 - 5 are tested through a combination of essays and unseen written examinations. In Part 3, assessment is based on a mixture of methods, such as extended essays, essays plus unseen exams, and the dissertation. Assessment in French is by a combination of coursework essays and unseen examination.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills - able to:

1. Capacity for independent analysis and research
2. Identification of problems and issues
3. The ability to read closely and critically
4. An ability to reflect on one's own positions
5. Ability to understand and evaluate different cultural traditions and environments
6. Ability to plan and conduct an extended analysis of a chosen topic

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Intellectual skills are acquired through private reading (1), through guided study of texts, seminar preparation and discussion (2-5), essay writing and feedback through tutorials (1-5), and the completion of the dissertation (6).

Assessment

1-5 are assessed formatively in coursework essays, and summatively in essays and unseen exams; 6 by means of the dissertation and the extended essays which form part of some modules

C. Practical skills - able to:

1. The ability to criticize and formulate interpretations of texts
2. An ability to engage in critical argument using

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

In English, 1-3 and 6-7 are developed in seminars, essays, and essay tutorials, and through the guidance and supervision of the dissertation module. French relevant theoretical approaches

3. An awareness of the rhetorical resources of the English language
4. Proficiency in speaking, writing, reading and understanding French
5. Ability to understand a variety of types of textual material in French
6. Bibliographical and research skills
7. A knowledge of appropriate conventions in the presentation of written work.

D. Transferable skills - able to:

Fluency in written and oral communication
The ability to formulate and present arguments
Assessing the merits of competing approaches
The ability to translate subject-specific knowledge and skills into other environments
The ability to find and use relevant information resources
Time-management skills
A creative approach to problem-solving
Group and interpersonal skills
An ability to self-evaluate and self-reflect
Use of information technology, especially word-processing

language classes are compulsory in every year (4-5), and much primary and secondary reading material is in French.

Assessment

All the subject-specific practical skills are assessed through formative and summative coursework essays. 1-5 are also tested in unseen written examinations, and 6-7 in the Dissertation.

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

Transferable skills are developed through seminar discussions(1 - 4, 7 - 9), through seminar presentations, essay writing, tutorial feedback and unseen examinations (1 - 9). 4 and 7 particularly are developed through requiring students to draw on acquired knowledge and skills when analyzing new material in essays and unseen examinations. 5 and 10 are developed through use of the library and other sources of information, for seminar preparation, essay writing and research for the dissertation. We require that all summatively assessed essays are word-processed (10).

Assessment

1 - 7 and 9 are formatively assessed through coursework essays and seminar presentations, and summatively assessed through essays, unseen examinations, and the dissertation. 9 is encouraged through essay feedback and essay tutorials. 8 is encouraged through seminars and in tutorials.

Please note - This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably be expected to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in the module description and in the programme handbook. The University reserves the right to modify this specification in unforeseen circumstances, or where the process of academic development and feedback from students, quality assurance process or external sources, such as professional bodies, requires a change to be made. In such circumstances, a revised specification will be issued.
