Programme information and content

This programme aims to provide a masters-level education in finance and psychology. The study of finance and psychology progresses through the programme so that students obtain a critical grasp of core theory along with thorough knowledge, and skills of application and analysis related to these disciplines. The particular focus is on Behavioural Finance. Recent years have witnessed the impact of behaviour on financial markets but the link is still poorly understood. The programme will prepare graduates for careers in the global financial markets and supporting industries. Graduates will acquire the knowledge and skills to continue their studies at the doctoral level.

Teaching and learning delivery

Teaching is organised in modules. The method of delivery varies among modules, especially in terms of the proportions of time allocated to lectures, seminars and dealing-room sessions. All modules are part-assessed via a multiple-choice test or coursework that can take a variety of forms. Assessment may involve a written or multiple-choice type examination.

The programme is taught over two 11-week terms. Part 1 begins at the beginning of Welcome Week in September of each year. Examinations for Part 1 modules are held in Week 1 of the following spring term. Part 2 occupies 9 weeks of the spring term and 2 weeks at the beginning of the summer term. Examinations for Part 2 are normally held in late May. For 12-month programmes there is an additional summer period where participants take a 20-credit module.

Total study hours for your programme will be 1800 hours. The contact hours for your programme will depend upon your module combination; an average for a typical set of modules on this programme is 250 hours. In addition to your scheduled contact hours, you will be expected to undertake guided independent study. Information about module contact hours and the amount of independent study which a student is normally expected to undertake for a module is indicated in the relevant module description.
