Linguistics
Faculty of Arts & Humanities	Programme length: 4 years
Date of specification: October 2005
Programme Director: Professor J Félix
Programme Adviser: Professor Garman
Board of Studies: French Studies and Linguistics

Summary of programme aims

The programme in French and Linguistics seeks to develop students' intellectual potential, enabling them to embark on a wide range of careers or postgraduate studies. The French part of the programme aims to produce graduates who are competent communicators in French, who have a sound critical understanding of French and francophone culture, history and politics, and who have acquired a range of skills to underpin their life-long development. The Linguistics part of the programme aims to enable students to achieve their full intellectual potential by means of the rigorous and critical study of language; to provide students with the foundation skills for further independent study and research; and to equip them with a range of transferable skills of potential value to future employers.

Transferable skills

The University's Strategy for Teaching and Learning has identified a number of generic transferable skills which students are expected to have developed by the end of their degree programme. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to enhance their skills relating to communication (both written and oral), information handling, problem-solving, team working, information technology (word-processing and use of web-based material) and career management. Students on this programme are also expected to have gained experience and show competence in the following transferable skills in addition to those prescribed by the University: use of library resources, self-reliance, cultural awareness.

Students of French and Linguistics will develop their abilities to deal with intellectual problems effectively by locating information, assessing it critically, communicating independent points of view logically and clearly (both orally and in writing), and substantiating opinions with evidence; the year abroad provides particularly good opportunities for developing increased (inter-)cultural awareness and self-reliance. They will also gain an awareness and experience of the application of information technology to language studies, and basic computing skills.

Programme content

The following profile states which modules must be taken (the compulsory part), together with lists of modules in any Part from which students must make a selection (the option modules). Students must choose such additional modules as they wish, in consultation with their programme advisor, to make 120 credits in each Part. The number of credits for each module is shown after its title.

At Part 1 French includes the study of both language and an introduction to aspects of modern French culture, while Linguistics introduces students to the levels of linguistic analysis that relate to sound, grammar and meaning – this constitutes the 'core' of the discipline. It also introduces applications of linguistics, in individual and social aspects of language.

At Part 2 students continue with the study of the French language, and take a compulsory module on French culture from 1945 to the present; a second broadly-based culture module allows a wide range of choice. Linguistics consolidates the core areas, and extends them in optional modules for sound structure and grammar and meaning. Running alongside these core modules is a further obligatory module in research methods training, and a wide range of option modules that allow students to explore further applications of linguistics, beyond the core.

During the Year Abroad, the experience of living in France enables students to make great strides in their linguistic skills and further broaden their knowledge of French culture, and they engage in independent study for their dissertation.

At Part 3 in French Studies students must take one module of further language study and are free to pursue their interests by selecting from a range of specialised cultural options.

In Linguistics there is the completion of the dissertation, which allows students to follow their particular interests in their own investigation. This, together with a further wide range of option modules, provides flexibility and the opportunity for specialisation in two-thirds of the credits in the final year.]

Part 1 (three terms) Certificate Level

Students are required to take 120 credits at Part 1, of which at least 40 and a maximum of 60 must be in Linguistics, and at least 40 and a maximum of 60 must be in French, made up from the modules below. Any remaining credits may be made up of any combination of 10- and 20-credit modules offered in the university, subject to the requirement for Part 1 examination.

Year Abroad (three terms in a French-speaking country)

In this Part, students will take a further 120 credits, made up of 60 credits in Linguistics and 60 credits for the French Department during their Year Abroad.

The French Oral module contributes 20 credits in Linguistics and is examined in Reading at the beginning of Part 3.

For credit accounting purposes, the French Dissertation is listed as two distinct modules, FR3LS contributing 20 credits in French in the Year Abroad, and LS3FR contributing 20 credits in Linguistics in Part 3, but its preparation and completion are conceived and assessed as a single piece of work contributing 40 credits to the whole programme.

Progression requirements

To proceed from Part 1 to Part 2, or from Part 2 to the Year Abroad, students must have obtained an overall average of 40 % in the 120 credits in the Examination as a whole, and achieved not less than 30% in any module except that marks of less than 30% in a total of 20 credits may be considered, provided that the candidate has pursued the course for the modules with reasonable diligence and has not been absent from the examination without reasonable cause.

In addition, in Part 1 and in Part 2, students must have obtained a mark of at least 40% in each of their compulsory modules in French and 40% average across the compulsory Linguistics modules.

To proceed from Year Abroad to Part 3, students must satisfy the examiners that they have completed an approved programme of study or employment in a French-speaking country.

Summary of teaching and assessment

In French

The modular structure of the literature or history programmes in Parts 2 and 3 allows for classes of no more than 12 students. These classes will normally be conducted through a combination of lectures and seminar discussions. In Part 1, lectures to the entire year group will be accompanied by small-group teaching in seminars. All language teaching is based on work in groups of no more than 15 students.

Part 1, Part 2 and Part 3 modules are assessed by a mixture of coursework and formal examination. The dissertation required in the Year Abroad must be submitted at the beginning of Part 3.

The Year Abroad French Oral will be examined in the Autumn Term of Part 3.

In Linguistics

Modules are taught by lectures, seminars and small group practical work. The Dissertation module additionally is supported by individual supervision. Language modules are taught in small groups. Some modules are assessed wholly by coursework, some wholly by examination, and others by a mixture of the two: details are given in the module descriptions.

The Year Abroad modules will derive credits from marks obtained in examinations set by the foreign university.

Weighting

The conventions for assessment and classification are included in the Programme Handbook, but it should be noted that Part 2 modules and Year Abroad I-level modules will count for 33% of final assessment, and Year abroad H-level modules and Part 3 modules will count for 67% of final assessment.

Admission requirements

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained 280 points from 4 subjects ('A' or 'A/S' levels), including 2 full 'A' levels. Candidates must have either 'A' level French, 50 points at 'A/S' French or an A at GCSE French. Equivalent international qualifications will be accepted.

Mature and international applicants. We welcome applications from candidates with a range of backgrounds, including mature candidates and those from other countries. Such candidates can be sure that their applications will be considered individually and by taking account of particular circumstances. International candidates are advised to contact either the EU or the international admissions tutor first, to discuss the suitability of their qualifications.

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support includes IT Services, which has several hundred computers and the University Library, which across its three sites holds over a million volumes, subscribes to around 4,000 current periodicals, has a range of electronic sources of information and houses the Student Access to Independent Learning (S@IL) computer-based teaching and learning facilities. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided through the University's Personal Academic Record (PAR) Scheme, in which students meet their Personal Tutors regularly to review their progress, and through the Careers Advisory Service, the University's Special Needs Advisor, Study Advisors, Hall Wardens and the Students' Union.

At Part 1, students receive an induction course in Academic Writing. Each student is provided with a course handbook which contains full details of the degree programme, the staff and facilities in the School of Modern Languages and the School of Linguistics and Applied Language

Studies, and a range of useful information including advice on note-taking in lectures, preparation of written work especially the dissertation, and dates of terms and examinations, and the University's procedure for assessment. Each Part of the programme has a Course Tutor to advise students on selection of modules, learning and assessment.

Learning on core modules is supported by small group seminars. Learning is also supported by dedicated facilities in the School. The Corpus Facility has 6 networked PCs that are intended in the first instance for students researching corpora and databases, such as the British National Corpus and CoBUILD. We also have our own research corpora and databases, and these can be accessed from these machines. The facility uses the very latest software in language and speech analysis. Also available for students are word-processing and statistics, e-mail, and Internet access. Further PCs are located in the student common room for student use. The Speech Research Laboratory is well equipped with a wide range of instrumentation for the investigation of many aspects of speech, and the technical staff and phonetics lecturers are available to advise and help with its setting up and use. The Communication Disorders Centre includes a speech and language therapy clinic in the local NHS Trust, and provides students with opportunities for learning and research. There is also a Language Acquisition Laboratory, which provides an essential testing ground for linguistic theories.

Career prospects

Students graduating in Linguistics are equipped to enter a range of professions that obviously concern themselves with written or spoken language: for example, publishing, broadcasting, advertising and translating, as well as academic Linguistics. In some cases, further study and qualifications will be necessary, for which Linguistics forms an excellent foundation, as in teaching, including second and foreign language teaching, and speech and language therapy. More broadly, employers have come to recognise that graduates in Linguistics have the ability to organise complex data and to work in IT environments, and these are skills that are in demand in many types of employment that are not directly concerned with language.

Graduating in a foreign language allows students to work in many different fields. Some use their language skills in teaching, including teaching English as a foreign language abroad; others proceed to postgraduate courses in various areas, including translating. A degree involving a foreign language can also, like degrees in other arts subjects, leads to careers in such areas as administration, management or marketing, or be a prelude to study in law or accountancy; and increasing numbers of students find positions in the business world, including the travel industry, where their knowledge of a foreign language can be a distinct asset.

Opportunities for study abroad or for placements

Subject to arrangements made in exceptional cases only, all students on this programme in French and Linguistics spend a Year Abroad either as an assistant teacher, on work placement or at an institute of higher education with which the University of Reading has a Socrates agreement.

The Department of French Studies participates in SOCRATES exchanges with the following institutes of higher education: Brest ESC, Clermont-Ferrand ESC, Geneva, Grenoble III, Le Havre ESC, Liege HEC, Lyon II, Lyon IEP, Montpellier ESC, Montpellier III, Paris III, Paris Dauphine, Poitiers, Poitiers IAE, Rennes IEP, Rennes II, Strasbourg, Toulouse I, Toulouse II, Tours ESCM.

Educational aims of the programme

The French part of the programme aims to enable students to achieve a high level of understanding of the language, culture and society that may be applied to their further studies and career.

By the end of the programme, students are expected to be able to:

- understand native-spoken French within an educated French environment and to communicate orally with fluency and accuracy;

- read with understanding, critical judgement and evaluation a range of specialist and non-specialist cultural, factual and other texts;
- write accurately in French with an appropriate understanding of the implications of register and style.

The programme in Linguistics aims to enable students to achieve their full intellectual potential by means of the rigorous and critical study of language; to develop students' skills in core areas of linguistics including phonetics, phonology, syntax and semantics; to allow students to develop their own interests in the applications of linguistics in a variety of areas; to provide students with the foundation skills for further independent study and research; and, by exposing students to a variety of learning experiences, to equip them with a range of transferable skills of potential value to future employers.

Programme Outcomes

The programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding, skills, qualities and other attributes in the following areas:

Knowledge and Understanding

A. Knowledge and understanding of: In French <ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>1. The French language</li><li>2. French and francophone history, politics and/or literature and culture</li><li>3. A wide range of specialist areas in which linguistic principles are applied</li></ol>	Teaching/learning methods and strategies 1. Development of the skills of reading, writing, listening and speaking French is by small-group learning and regular non-assessed coursework. The acquisition of French grammar is by Powerpoint lectures in at Part 1, supplemented by access on the internet to the lectures and other self-access material. In Part 2, grammar is learnt in small groups with regular non-assessed coursework. The Year Abroad in a francophone country offers immersion in French language and culture. 2, 3. Acquisition of aspects 2 and 3 is by lecture and seminar or tutorial and/or interrupted lecture. Students are expected to undertake independent reading and research from sources indicated in module bibliographies (library, internet), in order to gain fuller understanding of the topic and its context. Assessment The assessment of knowledge is by a combination over the whole degree of unseen examination (1-3), coursework essays (2-3), an oral examination (1) and dissertation (2-3). In Linguistics 1-6 are achieved through Part 1 module Sounds, Grammar and Meaning and Part 2 module Core Linguistics, by lectures and small group seminars. Additionally, small group phonetics practical sessions focus on 1. Further knowledge and understanding in areas 1-6 are offered in option modules at Parts 2 and 3, by lectures, small group seminars and guided assignments. 7 is achieved through Part 1 module Language in the Individual &amp; Society, by lectures and small group seminars, and through further Part 2 and 3 option modules, by lectures and guided assignments. Assessment 1-7 are assessed by coursework and written examination; 1 is additionally assessed by oral examination. Dissertation and oral presentations also contribute in core and applied areas.

Skills and other attributes

B. Intellectual skills – able to:

In French

1. Critically apply literary and historical concepts
2. Identify and solve problems
3. Analyse and interpret
4. Demonstrate and exercise independence of thought and sensitivity to cultural difference

In Linguistics

1. Think logically
2. Analyse and solve problems
3. Operationalise abstract concepts for testing of hypotheses
4. Assimilate rapidly-evolving concepts and models of language
5. Generalise knowledge and methods from one area of study to others
6. Plan, carry out and present an extended independent investigation of a research topic

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

In French

The variety of assessment methods employed places great emphasis on the learner's ability to demonstrate skills 1-4 through the production of coherent written and oral responses to the tasks set.

Assessment

The variety of assessment methods employed places great emphasis on the learner's ability to demonstrate skills 1-4 through the production of coherent written and oral responses to the tasks set

In Linguistics

1-2 are achieved through demonstration and example in all lectures and small group seminars; additionally, through language practicals at Parts 1 and 2, and the Part 2 module Research Methods, and through the Dissertation at Part 3.

3 is achieved mainly through the Part 2 module Research Methods, and through the Dissertation at Part 3.

4 is achieved through the progression of concepts particularly in the modules Sounds, Grammar and Meaning at Part 1 and Core Linguistics at Part 2; further opportunities are offered through option modules, especially those in core and applied areas at Part 3.

5 is achieved through the combination of core and applied modules at Parts 1, 2 and 3.

6. is achieved through the Part 2 module Research Methods, and through the Dissertation at Part 3.

Assessment

1-5 form part of the evaluation of the quality of students' coursework and their written examinations. Additionally, 6 is assessed through small-scale and subsequent larger project work, respectively, in the modules Research Methods, and the Dissertation.

C. Practical skills – able to:

In French

1. Speak, write, read and understand French at high or a near-native level of proficiency;
2. Apply key methods and concepts of linguistic analysis;
3. retrieve, sift and select information from a variety of sources;
4. plan and undertake different forms of research based on bibliographies and/or evidence.

In Linguistics

1. Perceive, produce and transcribe a full range of sounds produced by the human vocal tract
2. Analyse an unknown language at all levels of linguistic organisation
3. Identify patterns in complex linguistic data and account for them in terms of appropriate levels of representation and generative rules
4. Address and assemble the information contained in modern electronic linguistic corpora
5. Run appropriate statistical tests on numerical data

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

In French

All students receive initial guidance on how to identify, locate and use material available in the university and departmental libraries and elsewhere. Comprehensive bibliographies are provided at the outset of each course. Classes and tutorials are given to all students on the production of essays and literary, historical or linguistic concepts. Language classes are compulsory in every year, and much primary and secondary reading material is in French. The year abroad further promotes the active learning of French to a high level.

Assessment

Skill 1 is assessed by orals and unseen written examinations. There is regular unassessed coursework. Skills 2-4 are assessed through a pattern of coursework essays, unseen written examination and dissertation.

Linguistics

1 is achieved through small group phonetics practical sessions, based on general information provided in the main core lectures on the sounds of language.

2-3 are achieved through small group language practical sessions at Parts 2 and 3 which exercise field linguistic techniques, based on lectures on the core areas of language structure and function; also, through the Part 2 module Research Methods, and through the Dissertation at Part 3.

4 is achieved through introductory sessions and assignment in the module Research Methods, and through the option module Computer-Based Corpus Studies.

5 is achieved through the Part 2 module Research Methods

Assessment

1 is assessed by oral examination.

2-5 are assessed by assignment;

3-4 are additionally assessable by written examination, and 5 by evaluation of the Dissertation

D. Transferable skills – able to:

French

1. structure ideas and communicate them effectively orally and in writing;
2. manage time and work to deadlines;
3. participate effectively in groups;
4. work independently;
5. find information and use information technology;
6. be responsible and self-reliant; assess the relevance and importance of the ideas of others.

Linguistics

1. use IT (word processing, using standard and statistical software)
2. define a research topic and mount a principled investigation by means of hypothesis-formulation and testing
3. give oral presentations
4. work as part of a team
5. use library resources
6. manage time
7. formulate and implement career plans

Teaching/learning methods and strategies

French

All courses require regular written and oral work, enabling the student to develop understanding and the need for effective and coherent expression (skill 1). Skill 2 is learnt through the management of different deadlines for different courses within the programme and is a focus of initial one-to-one session under the PARS student development scheme. Skills 3-6 are developed from the outset in seminars or interrupted lecture. Skill 6 is a particular focus of the year abroad, its importance being taught during preparatory session in Part 2. IT skills are encouraged and developed by being an integral part of much teaching from year 1 onwards. Careers Management Skill development is an integral part of Part 2 and the year abroad with students undertaking appropriate activities.

Assessment

1 is assessed by coursework and is also assessable in the Dissertation
2 is assessed by group presentation and individual writing up of the project carried out in the Part 2 module Research Methods, and in the Dissertation
3 is assessed by staff observation and contributes to coursework on relevant modules
4-6 are not specifically assessed but contribute to success in forms of assessment generally

Linguistics

1-6 are achieved through the Part 2 module Research Methods
2, 5 and 6 are additionally achieved through the Dissertation
3 is additionally achieved in a number of option modules, and in the Second Year Conference
5 and 6 are also required for successful execution of assignments throughout the programme
7 is achieved through the 5-credit Part 2 distributed module Career Management Skills

Assessment

1 is assessed by coursework and is also assessable in the Dissertation
2 is assessed by group presentation and individual writing up of the project carried out in the Part 2 module Research Methods, and in the Dissertation
3 is assessed by staff observation and contributes to coursework on relevant modules
4-6 are not specifically assessed but contribute to success in forms of assessment generally
7 is assessed by three equally weighted assignments

Please note: This specification provides a concise summary of the main features of the programme and the learning outcomes that a typical student might reasonably expect to achieve and demonstrate if he/she takes full advantage of the learning opportunities that are provided. More detailed information on the learning outcomes, content and teaching, learning and assessment methods of each module can be found in module and programme handbooks.
