Cedar of Lebanon

Cedrus libani

The University is lucky enough to have over 30 Lebanese Cedars of varying sizes and ages. This tree is of the highest quality and certainly in its prime.

There are a number of specimens in this area; take a look at the variation of form and colour. Differences in colour are likely to be the result of differences in seedling provenance the more glaucous (Blue) the tree the higher the altitude of origin.