Students in Schools: make a difference

There are only three more training courses for this academic year - and two of them are next week!

What is Students in Schools

Typically you will spend about 2 hours a week in school over a 10 week period and you can support virtually any subject or use your language skills to help children who have little or no English.

We've got lots of new schools on board and some really interesting subject requests, so there will be great opportunities to choose from. Not only will you be helping Reading's schoolchildren and their teachers you will also be gaining valuable and highly transferable skills for yourself.

What to do now

First, you need to register via the online form.

Then you need to book a training course - at this 2 hour session you will get information on all the volunteering opportunities available and all the participating schools.

When are the next sessions

- Wed 30 November, 14:00-16:00 in Palmer 104
- Thur 1 December, 17:00-19:00 in Palmer 106

If you need some more information check out the Students in Schools website.

What past volunteers said

'My experience helped me increase my organisational and time management skills' Jun Ying Wong

'It was the most fun thing I did this year' Hanne Kouwenberg

'You don't have to be studying the subject, so long as you are interested and committed. It has possibly been the best thing I've done at university so far' Ellis Murley

'I found my visits to be a lot of fun, occasionally challenging, and always rewarding' Madaline Wilson

'The teacher and school pupils benefit, and I learnt a lot from the experience' Sirikorn Putthasaksopon
