Term time plus vacations You live in your room during term time and Christmas and Easter vacations. This is a 40-week residency (includes Freshers' Week).

Term time plus vacations (catered term time) You live in your room during term time and Christmas and Easter vacations. During the 31 weeks of term you are fully catered and during the Christmas and Easter vacations you are self-catered. This is a 40-week residency (includes Freshers' Week).

Whole year You live in your room during term time and all the vacations. Many international students use this option. This is a 51-week residency (includes Freshers' Week).

Where do you want to live?

Reading prides itself on being a residential university where the majority of new undergraduates as well as many postgraduates live in ten Halls of Residence located either on, or within easy walking distance of the Whiteknights campus. There is also a limited amount of accommodation available that is suitable for families. For more information on the halls see:

www.reading.ac.uk/life/life-accommodation.aspx

Many students choose to live in rented accommodation during their second and third years. However, if you prefer the comfort and convenience of Hall life there are a number of places allocated to students wishing to stay for an additional year in the same or another Hall on campus. Residents will be contacted in the first term to inform them of how to apply for Hall accommodation for the following year.

Accommodation guarantee

Undergraduates

If you are a new full-time undergraduate, Reading is your first choice, and you firmly accept your place and apply for accommodation by 1 August we will guarantee to offer you a single study bedroom in hall. If Reading is your insurance choice we will usually be able to offer you accommodation, but there is no guarantee and the choice is likely to be more restricted.

Postgraduates

If you are a new postgraduate student we guarantee you University accommodation if you fulfil all the conditions of your academic offer by 1 August, and apply for accommodation by that date.

How do I apply for accommodation?

You will be able to apply for halls online from spring of the year you will be starting at university. When Reading is confirmed as your first choice details of how to apply for accommodation will be on your academic offer letter as well as the University website.

Catering information

For students living in catered halls a meal package is provided which allows approximately 14 meals a week to be purchased via a weekly cash allowance. On arrival, the student access card is programmed to show that you are a catered student and you then use this card to pay at food outlets. The package is flexible so you can decide which meals you would like to purchase and you can choose to eat your meals in any of the catering outlets across the University. For more information about the catering package see: www.reading.ac.uk/catering
