

Statement from UCET

Supporting successful learners in primary and secondary schools

The courses Supporting Successful Learning in Primary Schools and Supporting Successful Learning in Secondary Schools have been ranked as being high quality and effective online courses, with supportive feedback such as: 'It is an excellent course, well put together, concise and informative with a good presentation'. Aimed at support staff these courses have also proven highly useful to those wanting to train as a teacher: 'Very grateful I was able to do this course before starting my school direct PGCE in September', 'This was an excellent course that I would highly recommend as it will benefit those coming into the secondary environment and also challenge those already there to make adjustments where needed'.

Both have been CPD Certified by the CPD Certification Service.

The courses are free, go-at-your-own-pace and offer resources and ideas to use within the classroom, as well as guidance about how children learn, the environment for learning, including analysing behaviour, communication and language.

The Universities' Council for the Education of Teachers recommends that those considering a career in primary or secondary school teaching give consideration to taking these courses. It is also appropriate for serving teachers and support staff.

James Noble-Rogers
Executive Director