Summary of programme aims

The programme in Italian and Management Studies seeks to develop students' intellectual potential and understanding of Italian language and culture (including literature and history) in conjunction with the development of a range of key functional aspects of business and management.

Transferable skills

During the course of their studies at Reading, all students will be expected to enhance their academic and personal transferable skills. In following this programme, students will have had the opportunity to develop such skills, in particular relating to communication, interpersonal skills, learning skills, numeracy, self-management, use of IT and problem-solving and will have been encouraged to further develop and enhance the full set of skills through a variety of opportunities available outside their curriculum.

In Italian Studies the programme also aims to offer opportunities of work-related learning.

Programme content

The profile which follows states which modules must be taken 'compulsory' modules together with one or more lists of modules from which the student must make a selection 'optional' modules. Not all options will necessarily be available every year. Admission to options will be at the discretion of the Programme Director. Students must choose such additional modules as they wish, in consultation with their programme adviser, to make 120 credits in each Part. The number of credits for each module is shown after its title, and the credit requirement for progression in Italian and Management is indicated for each Part.

Part 1 in Italian Studies includes the study of both language and an introduction to aspects of Italian culture. All students must take a compulsory 20-credit language module (to which they will be allocated according to their previous experience) and a compulsory 20-credit module on cultural themes. All students, if they wish, may also take a further module in Italian culture. In Part 2 students take one compulsory 20-credit language module (the level at this stage depends on their previous experience), and two optional modules from a range of broadly-based culture modules.

During the Year Abroad the experience of living in Italy enables students to make great strides in their linguistic skills, particularly their oral and aural ones: by the end of this period the differences between former beginners and other students will have been eliminated. Students further broaden their knowledge of Italian culture by pursuing courses of their own choice at an Italian University; alternatively they can choose a placement option. This option is subject to the approval of the Programme Director, who evaluates - after consulting his/her colleagues in Italian Studies - if the student has acquired the competence and the skills required for the placement.

Part 3 comprises one module of further language study, and five optional modules chosen from a range of specialised topics relating to many different aspects of Italian and European history and cultures. Some of these modules might offer opportunities for work-related learning. Up to 20 credits may derive from modules available elsewhere in the University.

In Management, Part 1 includes a broad introduction to the theoretical basis of business and management. In Part 2, students continue to develop an understanding of the fundamentals of business and management. In Part 3, they have an opportunity to specialise in some areas of management and to apply management techniques and skills to business practice.

In Italian Studies, teaching is through seminars, lectures, essay tutorials and language classes. Over the programme as a whole, assessment will be conducted through a mixture of assessed essays and formal examination. The Credits from Italian University courses will derive from marks obtained in oral examinations set by the Italian university.

In Management, the delivery of material varies among modules, especially in the proportions of time allocated to lectures, and to classes and seminars. All modules involve coursework, which takes a variety of forms. Final assessment normally involves a written examination, and may also incorporate coursework marks. The maximum proportion of a final module mark allocated to coursework is 20%, other than in special cases.

Admission requirements

Entrants to this programme are normally required to have obtained:

either 320 points from 4 subjects A A/S levels) including 2 full A-levels

or

300 points from 3 subjects A or A/S levels including 2 full A-levels.

Equivalent international qualifications will be accepted.

Mature applicants: Applications from mature candidates are welcomed, and many have done notably well in the past. A mature applicant is more likely to receive an offer of a place if he or she has undertaken recent study, for example 2 or more A Levels or an Access course (70% or more usually required) but each case is assessed on its merits. Potential applicants should contact the Admissions Tutor well in advance to discuss individual circumstances.

International applicants: Applications from international candidates are also particularly welcomed. Advice on the acceptability of your qualifications may be sought, where necessary, from the Admissions Tutor.

Admissions Tutor: Dr Sophie Heywood

Support for students and their learning

University support for students and their learning falls into two categories. Learning support is provided by a wide array of services across the University, including: the University Library, In-session English Support Programme, the Study Advice and Mathematics Support teams and IT Services. There are language laboratory facilities both for those students studying on a language degree and for those taking modules offered by the Institution-wide Language Programme. Student guidance and welfare support is provided by Personal Tutors, School Senior Tutors, the Students' Union, the Medical Practice and the Support Centres. If a student has a general enquiry and is unsure where to seek help, they should visit their Support Centre. There are five Support Centres across the University, including one based at the London Road Campus. The Support Centre will be able to advise on matters such as extenuating circumstances, module selection, suspensions, withdrawals, timetable queries and transferring programme. The Support Centre will also be able to signpost students to Carrington building where other University services related to disability, financial support, counselling and wellbeing, accommodation and careers can be found. More information on what student services are available can be found here: <http://student.reading.ac.uk/essentials>.

The School of Business and the Department of Modern Languages provide handbooks that outline programme and module content. In addition to lecture and class time, each module lecturer has appointed office hours during which they may be consulted without prior appointment. The University Language Centre (ULC) contains a range of audio and audio-visual materials to promote self-study in languages, together with facilities for watching Italian television by satellite. The University Library is particularly well stocked with works relating to many different aspects of Italian culture, and the Faculty possesses a video suite to support cinema studies. The Italian Resources Room contains a range of reference works which can be used by students and offers a congenial study space. The Department of Management has a resource room with reference books and computers for student use.
