Programme information and content

In French the Programme aims to provide you with the ability to understand native-spoken French within an educated French environment and to communicate orally with fluency and accuracy, to read with understanding, critical judgement and evaluation a range of specialist and non-specialist cultural, factual and other texts and to write accurately in French with an appropriate understanding of register and style. The programme emphasises student-centred learning, intensifying the learning experience through small group teaching and a range of opportunities to engage in projects and workshops. The culture studies modules are informed by staff research specialisms and designed to develop your intellectual skills and to critically apply literary and historical concepts, analyse and interpret a range of cultural texts, develop and demonstrate independence of thought and sensitivity to cultural difference.

Studying a Modern Language opens a variety of career paths. These include careers in business and marketing, publishing, international organisations, teaching and translation. The degree will equip you with a range of transferable skills, including structuring ideas and communicating them effectively, participating effectively in groups and team work, working independently, retrieving, structuring and presenting information, time management, responsibility as well as adaptability and self-reliance.

In International Relations the programme aims to give students an appreciation of the normative, methodological and institutional issues involved in the study of international relations. Students encounter a variety of concepts, approaches and methods as they progress from introductory and survey modules to more specialist options involving greater independent study. They also acquire a number of generic intellectual and transferable skills that prepare them for the world of work.

Part 1:	In French Part 1 develops your practical language skills in your core language module in all four areas (speaking, writing, reading and listening). You will also have the opportunity to understand and apply key terms in the structural analysis of language. The culture studies modules provide you with a sound understanding of key issues and developments in French and European history and culture. International Relations introduces you to the three strands of the discipline: comparative government, political theory and international relations.
Part 2:	In French Part 2 further develops your practical language skills in your core language module in all four areas (speaking, writing, reading, listening), building on

	the work done in Part 1. The cultural studies module provide you with an opportunity to encounter and critically engage with a range of material in the target language, such as films, literature, essays and historical documents, enhancing your ability to apply a range of analytical concepts as well as approaches to the critical analysis of this material. In International Relations, Part 2 provides you with a more in depth knowledge of the issues of conflict and resolution in society; the research tools we use to investigate and analyse such issues and the strategies states and other actors develop and implement in global International Relations today.
	The Placement or Study Abroad will give you the opportunity to apply and enhance your practical language skills in either a work or study environment, or a combination of both. You will further develop your adaptability and self-reliance as well as your sensitivity to cultural difference.
Part 3:	In French Part 3 gives you the opportunity to build up on your existing language skills, refining your use of more complicated structures as well as variation in register and style. The cultural studies modules will give you an opportunity to engage deeply and critically with topics based on staff research specialisms and to apply concepts and approaches for critical analysis to an increased amount of material in the target language. In International Relations, Part 3 offers a wide range of optional modules covering all aspects of politics and international relations.
