Programme information and content

The Programme aims provide you with an appreciation of the normative, methodological and institutional issues involved in the study of politics in relation to two of the three main sub fields of the discipline: comparative government and politics and either political philosophy or international relations. Students encounter a variety of concepts, approaches and methods for the study of domestic and international politics and are provided with a critical understanding of how societies are and should be governed. They progress from introductory and survey modules to more specialist options involving greater independent study. They also acquire a number of generic intellectual and transferable skills that prepare them for the world of work.

The Economics element of the programme aims to provide a thorough degree level education in the subject. The programme establishes key economic principles and tools of analysis at parts 1 and 2. Part 3 provides a range of options which allows the further study of specific areas and relevant applications. Students taking the degree will be expected to acquire a good knowledge and appreciation of the fundamental elements of economic theory and its applications, and the ability to apply their skills beyond the areas of specific study.

Part 1:	In Politics Part 1 introduces students to the three main strands of study: comparative government, political thinking and international relations. Economics deals with the microeconomic and macroeconomic foundations of the subject and some basic techniques underpinning mathematical analysis in economics.
---------	---

Part 2:	In Politics students will expand on their knowledge in Part 2 by taking a compulsory government module, a compulsory Study of Politics research methods module, and a module of their choice from those available. In Economics principles are developed further at Part 2 enhanced by a compulsory module, related to policy and institutions Optional modules can be taken exploring further specific sub-disciplines and/or applications.
Part 3:	Gives you the opportunity to expand your critical analysis skills and focus your study into areas of particular interest for you. Modules are generally taught in small groups and provide significant opportunities for research into key topics. In Politics, part 3 offers a wide range of optional modules covering all aspects of politics and international relations. In Economics, optional modules can be taken exploring further specific sub-disciplines and/or applications.

Additional costs of the programme

During your programme of study you will incur some additional costs.

In Economics for textbooks and similar learning resources, we recommend that you budget up to £400 per year. This figure is approximate. Actual costs will vary depending on individual study technique, preferences, and requirements.

In Politics for textbooks and similar learning resources, we recommend that you budget between £400 to £500 a year. The core textbook, which most students normally purchase, cost £300 new, and there may be other books/resources which you would find it convenient to buy.

Some books may be available second-hand, which will reduce costs. A range of resources to support your curriculum, including textbooks and electronic resources, are available through the library. Reading lists and module specific costs are listed on the individual module descriptions.

Printing and photocopying facilities are available on campus at a cost of £0.05 per page.

Costs are indicative and may vary according to optional modules chosen and are subject to inflation and other price fluctuations.

The estimates were calculated in 2016.

Optional modules:

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your Programme is set out in the Further Programme Information. Details of optional modules for each part, including any Additional Costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the Part in which they are to be taken and you will be given an opportunity to express interest in the optional modules that you would like to take. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability and may be subject to pre-requisites, such as completion of another module. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Placement opportunities

Placements:

You may be provided with the opportunity to undertake a credit-bearing placement as part of your Programme. This will form all or part of an optional module. You will be required to find and secure a placement opportunity, with the support of the University.

Study Abroad:

You may be provided with the opportunity to undertake a Study Abroad placement during your Programme. This is subject to you meeting academic conditions detailed in the Programme Handbook, including obtaining the relevant permissions from your School, and the availability of a suitable Study Abroad placement. If you undertake a Study Abroad placement, further arrangements will be discussed and agreed with you.

Teaching and learning delivery:

In Economics you will be taught through lectures, tutorials and computer classes.

In International Relations you will be taught through seminars and lectures. Teaching is organised in modules. The delivery of material varies among modules, especially in the proportions of time allocated to lectures, and to classes and seminars.

Total study hours for each Part of your programme will be 1200 hours. The contact hours for your programme will depend upon your module combination; an average for a typical set of modules on this programme is Part 1 - 228 hours, Part 2 - 192 hours, Part 3 - 120 hours. In addition to your scheduled contact hours, you will be expected to undertake guided independent study. Information about module contact hours and the amount of independent study which a student is normally expected to undertake for a module is indicated in the relevant module description.
