

Programme Specification

BA English Literature and International Relations

For students entering Part 1 in September 2024

UCAS Code: LQF3

UFELITXIR

UFELITXIRPE

UFELITXIRSY

This document sets out key information about your Programme and forms part of your Terms and Conditions with the University of Reading.

Awarding Institution	University of Reading
Teaching Institution	University of Reading
Length of Programme	3 years
Length of Programme with placement/year abroad	BA English Literature and International Relations with Placement Experience - 4 years (internal transfer only) BA English Literature and International Relations with Year Abroad - 4 years (internal transfer only)
Accreditation	N/A
QAA Subject Benchmarking Group	English; Politics and International Relations

Programme information and content

This programme provides you with the tools to understand political, cultural, and social processes over time and in a global context. You will have the opportunity to study a wide variety of literary texts from different places and written in different historical periods. You will study the dynamics of international politics, exploring the major threats to global order and the institutions that seek to address these challenges. Throughout the programme you will connect the academic study of Literature and of International Relations to contemporary issues, such as questions of racial and personal identity, climate change and war.

Interactive small group teaching is central to the programme. As you move through the programme you will become an increasingly independent learner, acquiring the tools you need to analyse a variety of literary modes and genres and to understand different models of global society and how it should be organised.

As a graduate in English Literature and International Relations from the University of Reading, you will have the skills you need to better understand the society in which we live and to express your ideas and opinions more clearly. You will learn to interpret data and evidence from diverse sources, develop persuasive arguments, and communicate them effectively. The knowledge and skills you gain will prepare you for careers within the commercial and charitable sectors, as well as roles in international organisations and in areas such as government and the civil service.

Part 1:	At Part 1, your IR modules enable you to study central concepts and theories in international relations. You will have the opportunity to apply your knowledge to major global issues, such as climate change and war. Your English Literature modules will consider major literary genres (poetry, prose fiction and drama) as well as lesser well-known and newer forms, with examples taken from the Middle Ages to the present.
---------	---

Part 2:	At Part 2, your IR modules build on the foundations established at Part 1, extending and deepening your understanding of global order. You will receive skills-based training to enable you to evaluate existing research in international relations, and to conduct original research. You will also have the opportunity to select a specialist optional module offered by the Politics and International Relations Department. Your English Literature modules allow you to investigate literature from different historical periods in more detail. In all our modules, we consider the theoretical issues that these texts raise. We consider how our interpretation of them can help us to understand our own cultural moment better.
Placement/Study abroad year:	Professional Placement Year and Study Abroad opportunities are available between Parts 2 and 3.
Part 3:	At Part 3, you will choose from a range of research-led modules reflecting the expertise of members of staff, allowing you to tailor your curriculum to develop your knowledge, to specialise within particular areas and to deepen your understanding in line with your own interests. You will also have the option to complete your own independent research project under the guidance of a dedicated individual supervisor in one or other of the two Departments.

Programme Learning Outcomes - BA English Literature and International Relations

During the course of the Programme, you will have the opportunity to develop a range of skills, knowledge and attributes (known as learning outcomes) For this programme, these are:

	Learning outcomes
1	To demonstrate broad, deep, and coherent knowledge of English literature in its principal modes and genres: across poetry, prose, and drama; covering a range of historical periods; and comprehending the regional variety and global reach of the English language
2	To apply discipline-specific practices of close reading, interpretative analysis and critical argument
3	To distinguish and evaluate different research methods, themes, and theoretical debates in current literary studies
4	To undertake autonomous learning, enquiry and research, applying your mastery of relevant knowledge, skills and methods
5	To discuss and appraise published research, or equivalent advanced scholarship, within the field of English literature and International Relations

6	To articulate your own and other people's ideas concisely, accurately, and clearly
7	To describe and analyse global political processes and institutions
8	To think critically and independently about historical and contemporary challenges in International Relations and identify potential solutions
9	To understand and apply qualitative and quantitative data relating to international politics
10	To formulate a research question independently in International Relations or English Literature and, under supervision, use appropriate methods to address it
11	To gather and synthesize complex information from a wide range of primary and secondary data sources
12	To plan and manage your own time effectively in order to prioritise and complete a series of tasks.

You will be expected to engage in learning activities to achieve these Programme learning outcomes. Assessment of your modules will reflect these learning outcomes and test how far you have met the requirements for your degree.

To pass the Programme, you will be required to meet the progression or accreditation and award criteria set out below.

Module information

Each part comprises 120 credits, allocated across a range of compulsory and optional modules as shown below. Compulsory modules are listed.

Part 1 Modules:

Module	Name	Credits	Level
EN1PE	Poetry in English	20	4
EN1TPW	Theories and Practice of Writing	20	4
PO1IRE	International Relations	20	4
PO1PCC	Politics of Climate Change	20	4
PO1WAR	War and Warfare	20	4

The remaining credits will be made up of optional modules available in the Department of English Literature.

Part 2 Modules:

Module	Name	Credits	Level
PO2GLO	Global Order	20	5
PO2SOP	The Study of Politics	20	5

The remaining credits will be made up of optional modules available in the Department of English Literature and the Department of Politics and International Relations. Students must take 60 credits from the Department of English Literature and 60 credits of modules from the Department of Politics and International Relations.

Students must take ONE of EN2MLR, EN2EM, EN2ERR OR EN2VIC.

Up to 20 credits may be replaced by modules from an approved list.

Modules during a placement year or study year (if applicable):

Students on one of the 4-year programmes will take one 120 credit module in either Work Experience or Study Abroad. Students may be permitted to undertake a placement year or a study abroad year between Part 2 and Part 3 of the programme. In such cases students will transfer to a 4-year programme. The placement or study abroad year should not normally be shorter than nine months full-time.

If you take a year-long placement or study abroad, Part 3 as described below may be subject to variation.

Part 3 Modules:

Students must select one 40 credit dissertation module.

Student must select 40 credits of optional modules available in the Department of English Literature.

Student must select 40 credits of optional modules available in the Department of Politics and International Relations.

Up to 20 credits may be replaced by modules from an approved list.

Placement opportunities

Placements:

You may be provided with the opportunity to undertake a credit-bearing placement as part of your Programme. This will form all or part of an optional module. You will be required to find and secure a placement opportunity, with the support of the University

Study Abroad:

You may be provided with the opportunity to undertake a Study Abroad placement during your Programme. This is subject to you meeting academic conditions detailed in the Programme Handbook, including obtaining the relevant permissions from your School, and the availability of a suitable Study Abroad placement. If you undertake a Study Abroad placement, further arrangements will be discussed and agreed with you.

Optional modules:

The optional modules available can vary from year to year. An indicative list of the range of optional modules for your programme can be found online in the Course Catalogue. Details of optional modules for each part, including any additional costs associated with the optional modules, will be made available to you prior to the beginning of the Part in which they are to be taken and you will be given an opportunity to express interest in the optional modules that you would like to take. Entry to optional modules will be at the discretion of the University and subject to availability and may be subject to pre-requisites, such as completion of another module. Although the University tries to ensure you are able to take the optional modules in which you have expressed interest this cannot be guaranteed.

Teaching and learning delivery:

Teaching on the programme focuses on supporting students to progress through it. By the programme's end, students will have the knowledge, capacities and confidence to independently and critically engage with current research in international relations.

You will be taught primarily through a combination of lectures and seminars. Small-group teaching is central at all stages of the programme, with all modules including some seminar-style sessions in which students deepen their understanding through discussion and short group exercises.

At Part 1, small-group teaching is scaffolded by larger lectures, which provide you with a framework that enables you to engage successfully with the activities in which you participate in these smaller groups. More generally, you will start to develop your capacity as independent learners and acquire skills specific to the study of international relations at university during your first year of study. You will also build your writing skills, for academic, non-academic and vocational purposes, in the year-long module EN1TPW.

At Part 2, there is typically less reliance on large lectures, with modules usually containing more and longer seminars. During the second year of study, you will continue to acquire new and job-market related skills and develop existing skills through new forms of teaching and more advanced material demands and exercises. You will be introduced to other forms of teaching such as PC labs, simulation exercises and practical activities. There is a greater emphasis on small-group discussion at Part 2, but material to help you familiarise yourself with the subject knowledge for each module will be provided in live lectures and in asynchronous recorded content.

At Part 3, students are treated as independent learners, and so you will on occasion be expected to prepare for detailed discussion of and engagement with complex material in small groups without the detailed scaffolding provided by lectures. In Part 3 you will choose the modules that best reflect your interests. You will have the opportunity to do a dissertation. While students will be guided by a supervisor who will help focus their project, identify appropriate methods and material, and comment on work, you will select and investigate your chosen question yourself. Across your three years of study, you will be assessed by traditional coursework essays, but you may be asked to do assessed presentations, to develop learning journals, and to undertake research projects.

Elements of your programme will be delivered via digital technology.

The scheduled teaching and learning activity hours and amount of technology enhanced learning activity for your programme will depend upon your module combination. In addition, you will undertake some self-scheduled teaching and learning activities, designed by and/or involving staff, which give some flexibility for you to choose when to complete them. You will also be expected to undertake guided independent study. Information about module study hours including contact hours and the amount of independent study which a student is normally expected to undertake for a module is indicated in the relevant module description.

Accreditation details

N/A

Assessment

You will be assessed through a combination of written examinations, written coursework assignments (including class tests, learning journals and research reports) and presentations. Assessments are designed to develop your transferable skills, as well as to test your subject knowledge. Further information is contained in the individual module descriptions.

Progression

Part 1

To achieve a threshold performance at Part 1, a student will normally be required to:

- (i) Obtain an overall average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 1;
- (ii) Obtain a mark of at least 40% in individual modules amounting to not less than 80 credits taken in Part 1; and
- (iii) Obtain marks of at least 30% in modules amounting to 120 credits.

In order to progress from Part 1 to Part 2, a student must achieve a threshold performance.

The achievement of a threshold performance at Part 1 qualifies a student for a Certificate of Higher Education if they leave the University before completing the subsequent Part.

Students on joint-honours programmes who achieve the University threshold standard for progression at Part 1 may transfer to a single-honours degree in one of their joint subject areas if they have achieved at least 40% in 40 or more credits (i.e. 2 x 20 credit modules) of modules owned by the school or department which delivers the single-honours programme to which the student wishes to transfer. In addition, students must also have met any programme-specific requirements on the single honours programme to which they may wish to transfer. Students should seek advice about the titles of programmes they may be eligible to transfer to.

Part 2

To achieve a threshold performance at Part 2, a student shall normally be required to:

- (i) Obtain a weighted average of 40% over 120 credits taken in Part 2; and
- (ii) Obtain marks of at least 40% in individual modules amounting to at least 80 credits taken in Part 2; and

(iii) Obtain marks of at least 30% in individual modules amounting to at least 120 credits, except that a mark below 30% may be condoned in no more than 20 credits of modules owned by the Department of Mathematics and Statistics.

In order to progress from Part 2 to Part 3, a student must achieve a threshold performance.

The achievement of a threshold performance at Part 2 qualifies a student for a Diploma of Higher Education if they leave the University before completing the subsequent Part.

Professional/placement year

Students are required to pass the professional placement year/study abroad year in order to progress on the programme which incorporates the professional placement year/study abroad year. Students who fail the professional placement year/study abroad year transfer to the non-placement year version of the programme.

Classification

Bachelors' degrees

The University's honours classification scheme is based on the following:

Mark Interpretation

70% - 100% First class

60% - 69% Upper Second class

50% - 59% Lower Second class

40% - 49% Third class

35% - 39% Below Honours Standard

0% - 34% Fail

The weighting of the Parts/Years in the calculation of the degree classification is:

Three year programmes:

Part 2: one-third

Part 3: two-thirds

Four year programmes, including study abroad

Part 2: one-third

Study abroad: Year abroad not included in the classification

Part 3: two-thirds

The classification method is given in detail in:

Bachelor's (for cohorts entering in 2022/23 and onwards) (see, in particular, section 17.5 and, for variants on the main method, Annex 1)

Placement Year / Study Abroad Year are not included in the classification.

Additional costs of the programme

During your programme of study you will incur some additional costs.

A range of resources to support your curriculum, including textbooks and electronic resources, are available through the library, but you will need to purchase some materials for private study. We recommend that you budget between £300 per year for purchasing books. Some books may be available second-hand, which will reduce costs.

Reading lists and module specific costs are listed on the individual module descriptions. Some optional modules may involve additional costs for fieldtrips or travel to work placements. You will be advised of these costs before you enrol on the module.

If you take part in Study Abroad you should expect to pay for services which you would normally expect to pay for at Reading e.g. housing, food, travel, social activities, etc. Additional costs will vary depending on the host institution and location. Please see the Study Abroad website for further details.

Costs are indicative and may vary according to optional modules chosen and are subject to inflation and other price fluctuations. Estimates were calculated in 2023.

For further information about your Programme please refer to the Programme Handbook and the relevant module descriptions, which are available at <http://www.reading.ac.uk/module/>. The Programme Handbook and the relevant module descriptions do not form part of your Terms and Conditions with the University of Reading.

BA English Literature and International Relations for students entering Part 1 in session 2024/25

27 November 2023

© The University of Reading 2023